IDEALS OF THE FOUNDERS

And whereas many of the Students in this Seminary may be devoted to the sacred work of the gospel ministry—that the true and fundamental principles of the Christian Religion may be cultivated, established, and perpetuated in the Christian church, so far as this Institution may have influence, it shall be the duty of the Master . . . not only to instruct and establish them in the truth of Christianity, but also early and diligently to inculcate upon them the great and important doctrines . . . and duties of our Holy Christian Religion.

From the Constitution of Phillips Academy, 1778.

And my will is that . . . such of these [scholars], who are designed to be employed in the great and good work of the gospel ministry, . . . may be assisted in the study of Divinity, under the direction of some eminent Calvinistic minister of the gospel, until such time as an able, pious, and orthodox Instructor shall be supported . . . as a Professor of Divinity, by whom they may be taught the important principles and distinguishing tenets of our holy Christian Religion.

From will of Dr. John Phillips, 1795, establishing Foundation for Divinity Students in Phillips Academy.

. . . Making some provision for increasing the number of learned and able Defenders of the gospel of Christ, as well as of orthodox, pious, and zealous Ministers of the New Testament; being moved by the same Spirit which actuated the Founders and Benefactors aforesaid, and influenced, as we hope, by a principle of gratitude to God and benevolence to man.

From Constitution of Theological Seminary, 1807.

To the Spirit of Truth, to the divine Author of our faith, to the only wise God, we desire in sincerity to present this our humble offering, devoutly imploring the Father of Lights, richly to endue with wisdom from above all his Servants, the Visitors of this Foundation and the Trustees of the Seminary, and with spiritual understanding the Professors therein; that, being illuminated by the Holy Spirit, their doctrine may drop as the rain; and that their Pupils may become Trees of renown in the Courts of our God, whereby He may be glorified.

From Statutes of the Associate Foundation, 1808.

PREFACE

THERE have been eighteen previous general catalogues of the Seminary, beginning in 1815, and continuing triennially until 1857, inclusive; subsequent issues were in 1867, 1870 and 1880 (published 1883). Those of the earlier series were prepared by members of the Faculty. Several editions were compiled with characteristic painstaking and accuracy by Prof. Bela B. Edwards, as is specially attested by the letters collected by him in preparation for the catalogue of 1845 and preserved in the Seminary Library. The catalogue of 1867 was prepared by Rev. A. H. Quint, D.D. of the class of 1852, the material having been in part collected by Rev. William R. Jewett of the class of 1834. Dr. Quint was also the compiler of the edition of 1870, and in part of that of 1880, the latter having been completed and published by Rev. Henry A. Hazen of the class of 1857, with constant and valuable assistance from Rev. William L. Ropes of the class of 1852, Seminary librarian, and of Miss Mary E. Stone of the Congregational Library, Boston.

Before 1857 the catalogues contained only graduates in the regular course, giving in one line the name, college and residence. In 1857 and 1867 non-graduates were included, and at the close of the catalogue a partial list given of resident licentiates, but without the year of residence in the Seminary or other facts. In 1870 and 1880, as planned by Dr. Quint, the data of both graduates and non-graduates were given much more fully, including date of birth and continuous record of ministerial service, with a supplementary list of resident students and resident licentiates, with the year of their residence, date of ordination and latest address.

The present catalogue—begun March 1, 1904—is based upon the edition of 1880, but the sketches of all the alumni from the first have been reviewed, one by one, and such additions and corrections made as later publications of college records, local history and family genealogy might furnish. Other facts are also given, especially the source and date of honorary degrees, course of study in other seminaries, mention of authorship, and service in the civil war. Members of the Advanced Class, resident students and resident licentiates have been transferred from the separate lists at the end of the book to their respective places in the chronological lists, and the same account given of them as of students in the regular course. Statistical sketches have been made of all the Trustees from the founding of Phillips Academy in 1778, as also of the Visitors, professors and other instructors in the Seminary, and a full list of lecturers added. Prefixed to the alumni of the Seminary proper is the record of Divinity Students under the Dr. John Phillips Foundation in Phillips Academy, which, beginning in 1795, was the nucleus and precursor of the theological school. A few names, found in the annual catalogues or in the Faculty records, but not included in previous general catalogues, have now been added. Several students of earlier years, about whom nothing has been known, have been traced and their data inserted.

The text of the alumni sketches was finished in December of the centennial year, but subsequent changes of address or service, when reported, and errors or omissions when ascertained, have been given under Additions and Corrections. A page of statistics as to the total numbers of students and their ministerial or other public service is added, as also a list of foreign missionaries in chronological order from the first year of the century to the last. There are two indexes, one of the officers, including trustees, visitors and all instructors; the other of the alumni, the latter giving both the year and the pages where their record may be found. Three illustrations are inserted: the Seminary buildings as they were before the alterations of 1878, and as they have appeared, with the Library and Chapel, since that time; and six representative professors of the century, two each from the earlier, middle and later periods. For the information of alumni a compact list of the present boards of government and instruction in the Seminary is added at the close of the book.

As errors and omissions will probably be found in the great number of dates, places and other items—fully a hundred thousand in all—it may not be improper for the compiler to state that constant pains have been taken to secure complete and accurate data by writing to all alumni known or supposed to be living, or if deceased, to surviving relatives. In default of replies to these inquiries—which often have been repeated again and again—or when replies failed to furnish the information needed, search has been continued in public records, college publications, church year-books and newspaper files, and through correspondence with class secretaries, necrologists, librarians and local antiquaries, to all of whom grateful acknowledgment is hereby made. This general acknowledgment is incomplete without a special recognition of the invaluable service of the compiler's assistant, Miss Jane B. Carpenter, who has written out all the "copy," and read all the "proof"—except this single sentence: to her unwearied and discriminating care in the arrangement of statistics is largely due whatever of clearness and accuracy the sketches possess.

It is a joy to believe that this record of three thousand "learned and able Defenders of the gospel of Christ" educated here in the century past will show that our beloved Seminary has nobly fulfilled the ideals which its Founders in their farseeing wisdom and devout faith held for the coming of the Kingdom of God in our own land and throughout the world.

The honorary degree of A.M. is not recorded when the recipient is a college graduate.

Sem. means a theological seminary. When a college or seminary has changed its name during the century, as N.J. Coll. to Princeton Univ. or Theol. Inst. Ct. to Hartford Sem., the title is used which was correct at time of reference.

Resident and special students in later years (1888—1908) are entered under the last year of residence, following the lists of non-graduates.

VISITORS

The Board of Visitors was constituted, 1808, under the statutes of the Seminary, to consist of three members, two clergymen and one layman, appointed by the Founders, with power to elect their successors. Governor Caleb Strong, the first of their appointees, declined to serve, and Hon. George Bliss was afterward elected to fill his place. The four principal Founders were also members of the Board during their lifetime.

DIVINITY STUDENTS, PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Dr. John Phillips of Exeter, one of the founders of Phillips Academy, left a legacy, 1795, for aiding young men in their preparation for the gospel ministry under the direction of "some eminent minister" until such time as a "Professor of Divinity" should be employed for the purpose. Rev. Jonathan French, pastor of the South Church, Andover, was the teacher on this "Dr. Phillips Foundation" until the opening in 1808 of the Seminary, to which the students then in residence were transferred. The date denotes the year of entrance.

EXPLANATIONS

In the following catalogue the students are arranged in three lists under each year:

1. Those who graduated in the regular course of three years—in full-faced type.

2. Those who entered the regular course in the same class, but did not finish it. The time of their study—in academical years, according to the annual catalogues—is given in parenthesis. A few who entered as “resident students” (res. stu.) in the early years are included in this group.

3. Resident licentiates, entered under the latest year of their study, if in the Seminary more than one year. Those indicated as “Abbot Residents” were Seminary graduates “eminently distinguished by their talents, industry, and piety,” selected for continued study as beneficiaries of the Abbot Fund.

In later years other lists are introduced for limited periods, as the Advanced Class, the Special Course, etc.

The name of a college or seminary, with date following, indicates the graduation of the student from that institution; one date in parenthesis shows that the student took a partial course in the class specified; two dates show the years of his study there. P.A. denotes preparatory study in Phillips Academy.

Ministers and churches are understood as Congregational, if not otherwise specified. The same denominational designation applies to successive items until another denomination is mentioned. p. indicates pastoral service, whether with or without installation, but service before ordination is shown by a.p., acting pastor. If successive towns are in the same state, the name of the state is not repeated. The residence last mentioned is understood as the place of death.

Lists of abbreviations may be found at the beginning of the book.
